

Digital Materialities:

New Media, Race, and Women's Activism

Lecture and Conversation

"Yack the Hack: Women's Activist Practices in Digital Culture"

Anna Everett,

Professor of Film, Television and New Media Studies, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Dr. Anna Everett is Professor of Film, Television and New Media Studies, and Acting Associate Vice Chancellor of Diversity, Equity and Academic Policy, and former Chair of the Department of Film and Media Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara (UCSB). She has published numerous books and articles including Returning the Gaze, Learning Race and Ethnicity: Youth and Digital Media, the award winning book Digital Diaspora: A Race for Cyberspace, and Pretty People: Film Stars of the 1990s. She is founding and current editor of Screening Noir: A Journal of Film, Video and New Media Culture.

"Race, Racism & Ways of Knowing in the Digital Era"

Jessie Daniels, Professor at the CUNY School of Public Health at Hunter College and the CUNY-Graduate Center.

Dr. Jessie Daniels is the author of two books about race and various forms of media, White Lies (1997) and Cyber Racism (2009). Her next book, Google Bombs, Astroturf and Cloaked Sites, takes a look at propaganda in the digital era is due out in 2013 from Routledge. She is also at work on an edited book project examines feminism, race and blogging.

Thursday, September 20
Stoddard Auditorium
Smith College
4:30 pm

This event is sponsored by the Five College Women's Studies Research Center and made possible in part by a grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation to Five Colleges, Incorporated and the Smith College Program for the Study of Women and Gender

